Redondo Beach Blvd., Torrance.

Mayor Albert Isen and Matt Appelman, California vice president of Sterling Theaters, were at the controls of the huge bulldozer which broke ground for foundations of the new theater.

Local city council, airport commission and planning commission members along with other community leaders were on hand to witness the first steps towards construction of the theater which will open early in 1963.

"The theater will be equipped to present any type of motion picture, including 70mm Cinerama and high fidelity stereophonic sound and will show first-run movies at popular prices," Appelman said.

This will be the first motion picture theater to be built in the South Bay area since before World War II, Appelman noted.

Second Sabin Clinics Declared A 'Must'

Los Angeles as an important Pacific port is more vulnerable than eastern seaboard cities to the threat of an "imported" polio epidemic and should therefore, even if for no other reason, participate 100 per cent in Type II Sabin Polio Vaccine clinics Dec. 2 and 9.

This warning was issued today by Dr. Reginald H. Smart, chairman, Public Health Committee, Los Angeles Medical Association, who declared:

"It is precisely the Type II virus which, though not previously epidemic in our country, has nevertheless caused a recent outbreak of 6000 cases of paralytic polio in Vietnam.

"Los Angeles is especially vulnerable to this threat, because Asian and South Pacific countries have conducted virtually no Sabin mass immunization campaigns such as those in Great Britain and Europe, and that which is now under way here."

Dr. Smart, who is director of the county medical association's huge Sabin anti-polio program, pointed out that hundreds of unknown, potential "carriers" of the dread disease arrive daily in the Los Angeles area.

"Any one of them," he stressed, "could pass on polio to a resident who has not taken advantage of the current Sabine Vaccine campaign."

Dr. Smart's statement underscored repeated warnings by Dr. Paul Wehrle, director of the Communicable Disease section of the Los Angeles County General Hospital, that Sabin immunization is necessary not only for protection of the individual but also to "clear" him as a "carrier" of polio, where others are concerned.

As before with the Type I clinics in October, the Type II immunization, Dec. 2 and 9, will be held in countywide locations to be published in local newspapers.

Donations of 25 cents will be accepted, but are not required. All men, women and children, whether or not they took Type I, are urged to take Type II vaccine in the continuing drive to stamp out polio.
